

TEACHING MANAGEMENT OF MENTAL HEALTH PROBLEMS:

HOW?

HOW

- How to teach Mental health and mental health management to occupational health physicians ?
- What instruction methods are available and appropriate for teaching ?

Required professional competencies for Occupational Health Physician

-
- WHAT and WHY as a starting point
- “to identify and to deal with mental health and mental health problems in workers at the workplace and in enterprises, within the context of the organisation of health, safety and well-being organisation”

Educational methods

- Depend on :
 - The type and the level of the training program (short, master academic, clinical)
 - The curriculum structure and the position of the course within the curriculum
 - The educational concept and the learning context
 - The availability of educational technology
 - The organisation of OHS (multidisciplinarity)

TRAINING FOR REQUIRED COMPETENCIES

- Based on:
- KNOWLEDGE
- SKILLS
- PRACTICAL EXPERIENCE

METHODS FOR KNOWLEDGE TRAINING

- Lectures
- Guided self study:
 - Literature (Books, scientific literature, e-learning)
 - Participation in expert meetings,
 - Participation in CME activities

Training methods for skills training

- Use of methods and tools for detection and diagnosis of work related hazards and risks for mental health problems (work history, questionnaires)
- Use of methods for screening of risk factors and problems in workers (history, questionnaires, tests)
- Basic methods for intervention (advising worker and employer, referring strategies, evaluation of work (in-)capacity)
- Methods for primary prevention

Methods for practical experience

- Hazard and risk evaluation in enterprises and workplaces
- Case studies, case discussions with colleagues, interdisciplinary discussions of cases
- Case simulations (role play)
- Project learning, problem based learning

Assessment methods

- Knowledge :examination (oral, written, assignment)
- Skills: performance testing, assignments
- Practice: case studies, case discussions with experts, project evaluation